Caring For Yourself This Holiday Season

We know that the holiday season is emotional for a variety of reasons. While you're taking care of others and their wishlists, remember to take care of yourself too. We have a few quick tips for self-care this holiday season.

- Do Something For You
 - Don't forget your holiday wishes, too! Include yourself in your holiday plans in 2021 - Take time to enjoy the company of friends and family (or maybe just some quiet downtime for you!)
- Recall Happy Memories & Remember The Big Season
 - The holidays can be a mixed bag of emotions as we look back on family traditions and any personal hardships over the last year. Those feelings are all valid - but don't let them overshadow the whole holiday season. Actively recall those happy memories and try to enjoy the holiday season in your own time and way.
- Spread The Kindness
 - A simple smile when picking up your coffee order can earn you a smile right back. Don't be a scrooge - share a bit of kindness throughout your day, and you'll likely get a lot of it right back!

New Years Traditions From Around The World

- Wearing White In Brazil
 - NYE outfits in Brazil are often white as a symbol of good luck and peace for the following year.
- Smash A Plate In Denmark
 - It's considered good luck if you open your front door on New Year's Day and find smashed dishware on your doorstep. Traditionally, you go out to your friends and family to break plates and cups in front of their homes. It's said that the more shards you have, the more luck you'll have and the more liked you are.
- Eat 12 Grapes In Spain
 - A New Year's Eve food challenge - If you can eat one grape for each chime at midnight, you earn yourself some good luck for the next twelve months.
- Choose Your Undergarments Carefully In Italy
 - If you're looking for a little extra luck in 2022, consider wearing some "lucky" red undergarments on New Year's Eve. Tradition says that wearing red underwear on NYE guarantees luck and success in the coming year.
