

Preparing Your Property For The Summer Heat

Peak summer weather is just around the corner - is your home ready for the heat?

Summer usually means increased electrical consumption - with comfort equipment and pool pumps and home electrical system running harder than usual.

An electrical safety inspection will help keep your property's vital system running safely all summer long.

Taking Steps To Summer-Proof Your Property

With temperatures soaring soon, it is important to take proactive steps to safeguard your property. When you don't complete the necessary preventative care and home maintenance necessary to protect your home or business, you risk major repair problems in the future.

- Swap Out Your Air Filters Appropriately - Don't forget about your HVAC's air filter. If left unchecked, it can get clogged with dust, debris, and allergens. When you keep your air filters in proper order, you enjoy optimal airflow and reduced HVAC system strain.
- Check Seals On Windows And Doors - Your property's windows and doors - specifically the seals and spaces around them - can be a cause of energy loss. If you can see light or feel drafts, that means you are wasting energy and overspending on your energy bills. Simple DIY weatherproofing is a great place to start.
- Consider Lighting Fixture Upgrades - Lighting fixtures, ceiling fans, and more can be updated to use LED bulbs, built-in LEDs, and other energy-efficient upgrades. With less power draw and more resilience than traditional bulbs, you'll be ready for whatever this summer throws at you without sacrificing safety or performance.
